

Albuquerque Weekly Citizen.

VOLUME 4.

ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1894.

NUMBER 16.

CLEAN SWEEP!

Republicans Carry Pennsylvania with a Whirl.

Attempt Frustrated to Wreck a Passenger Train.

Senator Mills is Disgusted with the Finance Committee.

COLORADO LEGISLATURE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—late country returns up to noon show that Graw, republican for congressmen-at-large, will have an enormous majority. His plurality runs over one hundred and sixty thousand, and is very likely to reach one hundred and seventy thousand, the largest ever given by the state for any candidate.

Attempts to Wreck a Train.
Foster, Feb. 21.—An attempt to wreck a Nickel Plate east bound train near McComb by piling ties on the track. The obstructions were found and removed by a farmer named Lynn. Had not the obstructions been found a serious wreck would have resulted. There is no crime.

Colorado Legislature.
Denver, Feb. 21.—The legislature spent the greater part of the day in preparing another appropriation bill for salaries and legislative expenses, the treasurer declining to pay on the former bill claiming that the eighty thousand dollars appropriated is tied up. A trust debt bill was also considered by the senate but was not passed.

Mills is Fired.
Washington, Feb. 21.—Senator Mills this morning formally retired from the finance committee and will no longer sit with full sub-committee. It is reported that he is disgusted with the dilatoriness of the committee on the tariff bill. The senator declines to give reasons for retirement.

Wilson Worse.
Agua Calientes, Mexico, Feb. 21.—Congressman Wilson was compelled to stop off here and rest on his way to Mexico City. He is feeling very badly and his condition is thought to be serious. The rest of the party is well and will remain indefinitely.

Oratorical Contest.
Fairfield, Ia., Feb. 21.—Representatives of all the colleges and universities in this state are arriving here today preparatory to the state oratorical contest, which takes place to-morrow evening. The delegates and their accompanying them, will banquet this evening and convalesce will be had for five hundred guests.

Press Convention.
Chicago, Feb. 21.—The second day's session of the annual convention of the Illinois Press association was opened with the annual address delivered by General Smith D. Atkins, of the Freeport Journal. The delegates then discussed the benefit of county organizations, the daily and how to make it pay in cities of less than ten thousand, and kindred subjects. An elaborate programme has been arranged for the celebration of Washington's birthday to-morrow.

Africans Americans.
Tuskegee, Ala., Feb. 21.—The third annual negro conference opened here today with about seven hundred delegates in attendance. The object of the conference, which takes politics, is to bring together farmers and mechanics, ministers and teachers of the colored race for the purpose of exchanging views regarding conditions and evils and also to secure an exchange of opinions concerning the best methods of education for the uplifting of the masses. The convention will be in session for several days.

Banker on Trial.
Madison, Wis., Feb. 21.—The case of a. Taylor John B. Keating, recently convicted at Milwaukee of receiving deposits with the full knowledge that the South Side Savings bank, of which he was president, was insolvent, is on the docket of the supreme court today, on an order made returnable to-day by which the county is compelled to show cause why the proceedings should not be stayed during the pending of the writ of error. If the stay is granted the ex banker, whose frauds ruined tens of thousands of people, will be enabled to go free on bail until the supreme court has finally decided the justice of his conviction.

Poking Fun at Penncote.
London, Feb. 21.—The querents of the fashionable clubs and the members of the diplomatic circle are having a good deal of fun in a quiet way over a Wash-ton dispatch which originally appeared in a New York paper, and has since been put into a neat circular form by some fan loving clubites, narrating how Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador at Washington, put on the gloves with an attitude of the athletic department of one of the Washington clubs, how the latter succeeded in bringing the claret from the nose of the distinguished diplomat, and how in consequence he was compelled to offer an humble apology. Some of the diplomat's friends are inclined to regard the incident, or, to be more precise, the publication of it, as a good joke, but around Downing street there is a decidedly strong opinion that of late years British ministers to Washington have an unfortunate faculty of getting themselves into print concerning matters decidedly undiplomatic and scarcely calculated to rebound to the dignity that is supposed to hedge around the representatives of the Queen of Great Britain and Empress of India.

Want a Prize Fight.
Special to THE CITIZEN.
El Paso, Feb. 21.—El Paso offers $30,000 for the Corbett-Jackson fight. Billy Lewis is coming from Montana to finish right with Billy Smith for a purse of $500.

Bland Retires.
Washington, Feb. 21.—Bland made another unsuccessful effort to get his seigniorage bill before the house this afternoon, but there was no quorum.

Career Closed.
San Francisco, Feb. 21.—Chris Evans, the noted bandit arrived at Folsom penitentiary this morning and the prison doors closed on him for life.

Money Market.
New York, Feb. 21.—Money easy; sterling exchange firmer at $4.56 for sixty days; $4.80 on demand. Silver dropped to 59¢.

Another Drop.
New York, Feb. 21.—Silver dropped another point today, 62¢; sterling exchange firm at $4.80 on demand;

Concert at the Opera.

The grand concert at the opera house last Wednesday evening by home talent was a brilliant entertainment, and all who participated in the exercises acquitted themselves in good style. T. A. Finch delivered a brilliant address on "Washington." Prof. Manzo played "Farewell to Mexico" on the guitar, which was followed by the song "Gold" from J. P. Dupuy. Norman Sterry recited "Virginia," then came Mr. Vernon Entwistle, a solo from Mrs. A. P. Moore's "Maid of the Mill" was sung by Messrs. Dupuy, Brown, Washburn and Johnston, which was followed by a recitation from Miss James entitled "The Angel of Buena Vista." Miss Jenkins sang "Jessie, the Flower of Dunblane," and "Robin Adair." Miss Gilmore delighted all with an excellent piano solo, after which Miss Baird came forward and recited "The Debating Society." Miss Claude Albright sang "La Habanera" from Carmen, and when encored sang another solo in perfect voice. "Cuba Mater" by the University, and "Star Spangled Banner" by Mr. Dupuy's quartette and University scholars closed the delightful exercises. All participants were frequently and generously applauded. The proceeds, which will go to paying for advertising the educational advantages of Albuquerque, amounted to over $100.

Diamond Robbers Recalled.
W. G. Pollock, who represents a big diamond concern of New York, is in the city with his wallet of samples, and to-day interviewed our diamond and jewelry dealers. Mr. Pollock is not a large man, physically, but he experienced nearly two years ago one of the most daring robberies in the western country. For five or six years before the robbery, so says Mr. Pollock, he was shadowed and followed by several men, who were bent on holding him up, and the instigator of the robbery, as was thought by the Pinkertons who worked on the case, was a merchant in business either at Pueblo or Leadville, Col. Finally one of the robbers was on the same train with Mr. Pollock, while he was traveling in the western country, and he was taken unawares by being struck across the head with a sling shot. The blow stunned him, but he made a grab for the fellow, when he received another blow, the bag of the sling shot breaking. Still he was not incapacitated, and made a rush for his desperate antagonist, when the fellow fired four shots into his body, and then grabbed his wallet, containing $15,000 in diamonds, gems, etc., and escaped from the car. The wounds were not dangerous, although Mr. Pollock was compelled to keep his bed for months. The firm expended a large amount of money in capturing the robber, who was run to earth by the Pinkertons and sent to the penitentiary for seventeen years. He is now serving out his sentence. The man in the penitentiary has persistently refused to "square" on the balance of the gang.

For the Chase.
Prof. Leopold von Pannier, of Sicily, assisted by local talent, will give a concert at San Marcos on Saturday evening, February 24th. The object of the concert is laid in the following paragraph copied from the Beit.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

Directors on Cash.
George Ostrander is in the city and he is as mad as a wet hen. About two months ago he entered the Cochiti mining district, and, as he states, associated himself with Louis Hostetter, George Blakes and Phillip O'Bannon in the development of several claims. Everything went along smoothly until O'Bannon came to the city a few days ago, when the news reached

NOTED WOMAN!

Descendant of a Revolutionary Patriot Dies this Morning.

Southern Coal Miners Opposed to Free Trade.

Boston in Fear of Riot from the Thousands of Unemployed.

Chris Evans in the Pen.

Washington, Feb. 21.—One of the most remarkable women in American history, whose fame as a patriot is established in the records of congress and political literary archives of the government, died this morning, being Miss Anna Carroll of Maryland, a descendant of the famous C. Carroll of Carrollton, signer of the Declaration of Independence. She was author of the plan "that broke the backbone of the rebellion." Her funeral will be held at Trinity church and her remains interred in Carrollton graveyard.

Opposed to Free Trade.
Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 21.—At a convention of coal miners held here sixty mines were represented, which have an annual output of three million bushels and employ ten thousand hands and own forty-five thousand people depend for support. The convention passed a resolution asking that coal be not placed on the free list and prayed the southern senators to use their influence to that end.

The Wrong Fellow.
Boston, Feb. 21.—The city authorities arrested him on suspicion of being the disturber of yesterday afternoon, when five thousand unemployed and ragged and hungry men crowded into the state house demanding work and intimating that the legislature was in the hands of the corporations and bowing for the governor, who appeared and pacified them. The anarchist tendency of the utterances of one of the men named Swift has excited the men's passions and additional trouble is looked for and extra police are on duty to-day.

Student Murderers.

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 21.—The annual banquet of the Cornell freshman last night resulted in the death this morning of a colored woman cook and Thomas McNeal, a student. The sophomore generated chlorine gas in the room under the banqueting hall, and introduced the deadly fumes through the floor.

Hips n'tail a way.

London, Feb. 21.—A disastrous fire occurred this morning in the business portion of this city. Before the flames could be subdued, the damage amounted to two hundred thousand dollars. Watchman J. Sullivan was overcome by the heat and lost his life.

Trouble Brewing.

Cripple Creek, Feb. 21.—Miners working 8 hours by order of court on the Portland mine were obliged by strikers to work only 8 hours, and there is trouble brewing. The leading citizens are in consultation this afternoon.

They do not speak.

London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard happened to be the American secretary of state at the time that Sackville-West made his now historic break... and that is developed upon the present American minister to conduct the correspondence that ended in West's recall. Then everything was explained. Since this event the two gentlemen have met twice in aristocratic drawing rooms, but they do not speak as they pass by.

They do not speak.
London, Feb. 21.—Ex-British Minister to Washington Sackville-West and United States Minister Thomas F. Bayard do not speak as they pass by. It was at a fashionable function a few weeks ago that the two distinguished diplomats came together for the first time since the American ex-secretary of state came to this country in the role of ambassador. Some of the guests noticed that the ex-minister to Washington did not seem in a hurry to greet his brother diplomat, but that, on the contrary, he found it convenient to form one of a group in an adjoining saloon, until the hostess out in an appearance and compelled him, willy-nilly, to take her arm and accompany her to the group surrounding Mr. Bayard. Here she went through the formality of an introduction. Mr. Bayard's manner was cordial, but Sackville-West contented himself with a stiff and formal bow. The rest of the guests wondered what it meant, until somebody with a memory recalled the fact that Mr. Bayard